

The Seats of the Mighty, Volume 5

IN THE CATHEDRAL I awoke with the dawn, and, dressing, looked out of the window, seeing the brindled light spread over the battered roofs and ruins of the Lower Town. A bell was calling to prayers in the Jesuit College not far away, and bugle-calls told of the stirring garrison. Soldiers and stragglers passed down the street near by, and a few starved peasants crept about the cathedral with downcast eyes, eager for crumbs that a well-fed soldier might cast aside. Yet I knew that in the Intendants Palace and among the officers of the army there was abundance, with revelry and dissipation. Presently I drew to the trap-door of my loft, and, raising it gently, came down the ladder to the little hallway, and softly opened the door of the room where Labrouks body lay. Candles were burning at his head and his feet, and two peasants sat dozing in chairs near by. I could see Labrouks face plainly in the flickering light: a rough, wholesome face it was, refined by death, yet unshaven and unkempt, too. Here was work for Vobans shears and razor. Presently there was a footstep behind me, and, turning, I saw in the half-light the widowed wife. Madame, said I in a whisper, I too weep with you. I pray for as true an end for myself. He was of the true faith, thank the good God, she said sincerely. She passed into the room, and the two watchers, after taking refreshment, left the house. Suddenly she hastened to the door, called one back, and, pointing to the body, whispered something. The peasant nodded and turned away. She came back into the room, stood looking at the face of the dead man for a moment, and bent over and kissed the crucifix clasped in the cold hands. Then she stepped about the room, moving a chair and sweeping up a speck of dust in a mechanical way. Presently, as if she again remembered me, she asked me to enter the room. Then she bolted the outer door of the house. I stood looking at the body of her husband, and said, Were it not well to have Voban the barber? I have sent for him and for Gabord, she replied. Gabord was Jeans good friend. He is with General Montcalm. The Governor put him in prison because of the marriage of Mademoiselle Duvarney, but Monsieur Doltaire set him free, and now he serves General Montcalm. I have work in the cathedral, continued the poor woman, and I shall go to it this morning as I have always gone. There is a little unused closet in a gallery where you may hide, and still see all that happens. It is your last look at the lady, and I will give it to you, as you gave me to know of my Jean. My last look? I asked eagerly. She goes into the nunnery to-morrow, they say, was the reply. Her marriage is to be set aside by the bishop to-day--in the cathedral. This is her last night to live as such as I--but no, she will be happier so. Madame, said I, I am a heretic, but I listened when your husband said, Mon grand homme de Calvaire, bon soir! Was the cross less a cross because a heretic put it to his lips? Is a marriage less a marriage because a heretic is the husband? Madame, you loved your Jean; if he were living now, what would you do to keep him. Think, madame, is not love more than all? She turned to the dead body. Mon petit Jean! she murmured, but made no reply to me, and for many minutes the room was silent. At last she turned, and said, You must come at once, for soon the priests will be at the church. A little later I will bring you some breakfast, and you must not stir from there till I come to fetch you--no. I wish to see Voban, said I. She thought a moment. I will try to fetch him to you by-and-bye, she said. She did not speak further, but finished the sentence by pointing to the body. Presently, hearing footsteps, she drew me into another little room. It is the grandfather, she said. He has forgotten you already, and he must not see you again. We saw the old man hobble into the room we had left, carrying in one arm Jeans coat and hat. H
